Isolated enterprise voip system from cisco

The enterprise voip solution from cisco is an isolated system. The enterprise expends large investment in setup and maintaining its own voip platform. The enterprise voip systems in different companies cannot be connected. The outside customer has no account of the enterprise voip system, so the customer can not make free call to the enterprise.

Headcall eliminates the enterprise voip system

Headcall provides free voip service worldwide, it is universal and unified voip service for all users including enterprises and individuals. Enterprises and individuals use the public headcall voip service through headcall netphone or other terminals, or simple, the headcall software phone.
